

AUNG SAN SUU KYI, CHRISTOPHER HITCHENS, LINDSEY HILSUM, SALMAN RUSHDIE, NOAM CHOMSKY, AND...YOU?

ENTER OUR STUDENT BLOGGING COMPETITION FOR YOUR CHANCE TO BE PUBLISHED IN INDEX ON CENSORSHIP MAGAZINE

Are you passionate about freedom of expression? Do you want to write for an award-winning, internationally renowned magazine and website, which has published the works of Aung San Suu Kyi, Salman Rushdie and Arthur Miller? Then enter Index on Censorship's student blogging competition!

The winning entry will be published in the Index on Censorship magazine, a celebrated, agenda-setting international affairs publication. It will be posted on our popular and influential website, which attracts contributors and readers from around the world. Index is one of the leading international go-to sources for hard-hitting coverage of the biggest threats and challenges to freedom of expression today. This competition is a fantastic opportunity for any aspiring writer to reach a global, diverse and informed audience.

The winner will also be invited to attend the launch party of our latest magazine in London, get to network with leading figures from international media and human rights organisations and will receive a one-year subscription to the Index on Censorship magazine.

To get in with a chance of winning this competition, we want to hear your thoughts on the vital human right that guides our work across the world, from the UK to Brazil to Azerbaijan. Write a 500-word blog post on the following topic:

What is one of the biggest challenges facing freedom of expression in the world today? This could cover a repressive regime, threats to digital freedom, religious clampdowns or attacks on media freedom, focusing on any region or country around the world.

The competition is open to all first-year undergraduate students in the UK, and the winning entry will be determined by a panel of distinguished judges including the Index Chair. To enter the competition, submit your piece with your name, university, course and year of study, to competiton@indexoncensorship.org by 31 May 2013. Visit www.indexoncensorship.org for more information.

We look forward to reading your entries!
