SCL Tech Law 'Green' Dragons' Den Competition

Led by the SCL Sustainability and ESG Group

Sponsored by: decoded.legal & colt Technology Services

The Society of Computers and Law (SCL) is delighted to launch Green Dragons' Den.

Are you a student or prospective trainee interested in tech, tech law, computer science, sustainability or ESG? If so, we would love to hear from you!

The challenge we're setting is: Which legal, environmental, social, or governance issue can be resolved with improved technology and how?
We want to hear your sustainability innovations and how they can improve the world we live in. The competition is open to individual students or teams of up to three.

How it works
Submit a video (~ 2 minutes) or written piece (500 - 750 words) outlining your idea by close of business on Friday 12 January 2024. Selected entrants will be invited to an in-person event in London in February 2024. This is the chance to present your idea to our Dragons and to network with law firms.

You will be allocated a mentor from the SCL Trainee Lawyers Group, who represent top law firms including DLA Piper, Berwins, and Fieldfishers, who can help you prepare for the live Dragons' Den event as well as support you on the day.

The Prize
The winner(s) will receive a work placement experience with a law firm or organisation prominent in the tech sector.

For more details and how to enter please click here to visit the SCL website.

Sponsored by decoded.legal and Colt Technology Services